

Trusting God Our Redeemer

In him we have redemption through the blood, the forgiveness according to the riches of his grace" Eph.1:7(esv)

At some point in our lives, we recognize that we must trust someone enough to call on to save us. Oftentimes we call on our parents, our spouses, even other people.

God should be the one and only one whom we should call. As we trust God as our redeemer, it allows him to have an active part in intervening and saving us.

Isaiah 26:3 says, " Thou will keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee." As our redeemer, it allows God to have an active part in intervening and saving us from situations that we can't fix.

God will become our personal deliverer. He will defend our cause and give transformation from negative situations. As we abandon our desire to become head chief and bottle maker, we find solitude in God's authority.

When our problems seem unbearable, we turn our faith over our fears. Ultimately trusting God as our redeemer means believing that he already paid the price through the birth, life, death and resurrection of Jesus.

He is a just God, faithful to walk us through every storm and bring us to a place of restoration, peace and gratitude.
